

Building Block #6

Twist stitches are members of the cable stitch family. These two-stitch mini-cables are made without the use of a cable needle. A twist stitch is formed by knitting stitches out of order creating a crossover similar to cabling. Right twists are simple to execute and are often used to complement cable patterns.

In this block, the Fleck Stitch pattern has been inserted between the columns of twists for added interest. Arranging panels of different stitches in this manner is the hallmark of Aran sweaters.
