

Building Block #9

A Left Twist is the mirror image of the Right Twist stitch. Both are formed from two stitches that are knit out of order and without the use of a cable needle. There are several ways to create a Left Twist, with one of the simplest methods used here.

While a Left Twist is a bit more finicky to execute than its counterpart, the Right Twist, its use opens the door to many gorgeous patterns. Twists are especially popular in Aran-style knitting and are incorporated into cable designs ranging from basic to very intricate patterns.
